President's Message

Well, I hope everyone has recovered from the cold spell that hit this area and a large portion of the country a few weeks ago. I know I was house bound for several days when there was ice & sleet covering the roads. But that actually turned out being a good thing for me, as it got me back into the studio to paint. I will admit that I don't paint near as often as I should, so I'm actually thankful for that unplanned opportunity!

Unfortunately, our meeting last month had to be cancelled due to the weather conditions, so we'll reschedule our planned demo artist, Bev Boren, to join us again in the future. We've also had to make a change to our demo artist in February. Jennifer Gillen won't be able to join us, so Ann Winchester has graciously stepped forward. Ann has been teaching watercolor in this area for many years, and she will be joining us on the evening of the 16th.

Also, I have a few notes I want to share with everyone. Our upcoming watercolor workshop with Ken Call is filling up very fast. I think we only have around 5 open spots remaining. If you've considered signing up, don't put it off. Once it fills up, we'll create a waiting list. Ken is a talented, award-winning artist, and this will be a really fun workshop to attend.

We are accepting entries into our 2026 International Juried Exhibition. We already have entries from multiple states, and even international entries. This is our largest event of the year, so get your paintings ready. The deadline for entry is March 27th. It'll be here before you know it! All entries are being accepted through CaFE (Call for Entry).

And for those of you in the DFW area, don't forget you can bring a completed painting to our next meeting to enter the Painting of the Month contest. The winners receive gift certificates to Jerry's Artarama and are eligible for the Painting of the Year vote in November. Don't forget, it's open to current SWA members, so make sure you've renewed your membership for 2026.

And lastly, I want to thank our longtime member Veronica Ritchey for all of her years of volunteering to maintain our list of Signature Members. She's kept up with everyone that has been accepted into our shows over the years and knows who has met the qualifications to obtain their signature status. Veronica has relinquished that role, and I want to make sure she knows how much we appreciate her managing this for us for so long.

Here's to a good February. Spring is on the way. Keep painting!

Demo Artist

Ann Winchester

Ann Winchester is a commission portrait artist and innovative art coach.

Her list of ribbon-winning works includes Best of Show for the Society of Watercolor Artist's International Exhibition and two Best of Shows for the SWA's juried membership competitions.

Best known for her portraits, Ann has an innate ability to capture skin tones and the vibrancy of her subjects. She also paints animals, landscapes and still life.

Her inquisitive mind is constantly seeking out innovative ways to express her art and to teach others how to tap into their own artistic abilities. She loves to learn and generously shares what she learns with her art students in both classes in Arlington and Cleburne. Call or text Ann at 817-308-1889 for class information.

Her classes include beginning and advanced watercolor and portraiture. "For me the classes offer a mutually beneficial relationship—while my students are learning from me, I am constantly learning from them, pushing myself to be a better artist and mentor," Ann says.

Ann divides her time between portraiture and teaching and is available by special arrangements for art seminars and workshops. She is a Signature Member of the Fort Worth Society of Watercolor Artists and a member of the FW15.

Artist Spotlight

Sondra Carr

Chico, Texas

Grandpa's Place

I live in Chico, Texas, and my work is currently represented at Cool Creek Gallery in Bridgeport, Texas, where I have completed numerous commissioned landscapes and portraits. Creating art that holds meaning for others—and witnessing the emotional responses of clients to pieces made especially for them—is one of the most fulfilling aspects of my life as an artist.

The three paintings included below are examples of my portrait work and reflect my approach to realism and capturing people as they are.

Resting in the Blue

I began painting seriously nine years ago while searching for something that would bring a deeper sense of purpose to my life. My connection to art, however, reaches much further back. One of my earliest memories is from kindergarten, where I confidently critiqued a classmate's drawing—and was promptly sent to stand in the corner. A few years later, at ages nine and ten, my mother enrolled me in both portrait and watercolor classes, quietly planting the seeds for what would eventually become one of the most rewarding pursuits of my life. Though largely self-taught, with guidance from classes along the way, I have developed a deep love for portraiture. There is nothing quite like watching a face come to life on paper. My work is primarily realistic, while intentionally leaving certain areas loose and open to the viewer's imagination. I'm especially drawn to capturing people as they are—unposed, present, and simply being human.
